As of September 18, 2009, the healthcare reform bill, HR 1495, was still in panel. Once it is from committee, it really is to house and Senate for vote and then to the president for completing. Just because it is signed, doesn't suggest that it immediately goes into effect. Couple of the mandates of fresh bill require private insurers to stick to new rules and regulations that are positioned by the reform monthly bill. One can only guess how well that is going to more than. The real issue at hand, as is many bills, is just how much will it cost? Merely in regards to actual cost to individuals desiring some form of healthcare, but arrives to of taxes and burdens upon tax payers?
